EMPLOYMENT REPORTS

HJS Personnel Services has been involved in the preparation of employment reports for litigation since 1989. Reports are prepared to evaluate the employment and earnings prospects of Claimants seeking compensation for loss of earnings and:

- are prepared in accordance with Part 35 of the CPR to evaluate the employment and earnings prospects of Claimants seeking compensation for loss of earnings;
- can take the form of a full, detailed report, or a short report targeting specific issues;
- are based on individual research and produced to meet the specific requirements of the case.

Our team of experienced consultants undertakes assignments on behalf of both Claimants and Defendants, and on joint instructions. As a team we have knowledge and experience of many occupations and industries. We have experience of mediation and industrial tribunals.

PATHWAY TO WORK - EMPLOYMENT REHABILITATION

We provide information and advice on rehabilitation and retraining options for individuals to facilitate their return to the labour market. Our Pathway to Work programme encourages and assists in a proactive return to training and work and involves an evaluation of skills and experience and identification of the support and assistance available. Details are available from the 'Pathway to Work' pages of our website.

James Bolton Major (Retired)

After commissioning from the Royal Military Academy Sandhurst in 1994, James served for 16 years as an Infantry officer with The RIFLES, formerly the Light Infantry. During this time he served in Northern Ireland, Sierra Leone, Cyprus and Iraq. Most of his career was in the training and operations environment, where he held various command and staff appointments. James attended the Intermediate Command and Staff Course at the Defence Academy of the United Kingdom. He left as a Major at the end of 2010.

James then used his military experience and joined The List as an Associate Director. The List is a specialist ex-military recruitment organisation, conducting executive search and recruitment of former members of the Armed Forces at all levels of seniority and in all areas of the UK economy. As a result he has gained knowledge of the transferable skills and potential of servicemen and women when entering the civilian employment market.

James works as a consultant in the Defence and Security sector working in business continuity, emergency response and crisis management.

James also works as a liability expert witness in the defence arena.

James joined HJS Personnel Services in March 2013 and undertakes work as an employment expert in cases involving Armed Forces personnel.

Stephen Dudley

BA (Hons) History

MA History

Stephen spent 27 years in the Royal Navy (RN) as a Supply and Secretariat officer. Whilst operational roles saw him serving all over the world at sea (as well as in Afghanistan) shore appointments had a very strong emphasis on personnel policy and casework both within the RN and Joint Services.

He had three appointments on the staff of the Chief of Naval Personnel where he worked on complex casework on administrative discharge, and complaints to the Admiralty Board, as well as being responsible for Maternity policy and Women's Royal Naval Service (WRNS) at sea as female personnel became fully integrated into the RN. A trained Equal Opportunities adviser, he has also prepared casework for the Service Complaints Ombudsman about Officer promotions and discrimination.

As Ratings Career Management Officer, he was responsible for running the promotion boards for ratings in every branch, for every rating from Leading Hand to Warrant Officer, ensuring all qualified candidates were presented to boards who had been properly briefed and carefully prepared to select candidates on merit alone with scrupulous fairness. He was also responsible variously through his career for officers' appraisal, and for the career aspirations, appraisal and mentoring of service personnel from all three services under his command.

He worked in MoD Whitehall in various roles for over ten years. Two were specialist personnel policy postings which saw him responsible for pay and allowance policy for all three services, as well staffing Employment Tribunal casework, and for supporting the Armed Forces Pay Review Body as they gathered independent evidence for their annual recommendations.

His final appointment saw him responsible for policy on Veterans Affairs, liaising with nearly 2,000 specialist Service charities, briefing ministers and acting as Secretary to the influential joint MoD and third sector Service Charity Partnership Board during the launch of the Armed Forces Covenant.

Since retiring he has worked as a consultant to the Department for International Development. In addition to his work for HJS he has a part-time role with the DSMA Committee providing independent confidential advice on national security matters to government departments and UK media. He is also a director of the family farming business.

Nigel Fenn - Colonel (Retired)

Nigel graduated from the Joint Services' Defence Staff College, Greenwich in 1994 and retired from the British Army in 2011, having completed 36 years commissioned service with the Royal Engineers. On retirement he worked at an executive level with Network Rail UK and Network Rail Consulting in Australia.

Nigel's career has spanned all levels of command, culminating as the Commander of the UK's Explosive Ordnance Disposal assets as a full colonel, a command consisting of both regular and territorial army units of around 3000 personnel. These commands have required him to deal with officer, civil servant, and soldier personnel issues daily. He has spent two postings in the British Army's Personnel centre dealing with confidential reports, formal boards for soldiers and officers as well as appointment boards. He was an instructor at the Combined Arms Tactics centre at Warminster and the Royal Military Academy, Sandhurst. Nigel was also the Chief Instructor for the training of Royal Engineer young officers at Chatham, Kent.

Nigel's extensive military experience included overseas operational tours as an independent unit commander including Belize, Gibraltar, Falkland Islands and postings in Hong Kong, Germany, Canada and the Balkans. He also served with the Royal Engineers Commando Squadron with multiple winter deployments to Norway and a tour in Northern Ireland in 1981. He deployed as the Chief Engineer for the deployment of UK forces to Afghanistan in 2006 and as the UK's Defence Attaché to Serbia and Montenegro in 2008. Each of these postings and tours has required Nigel to successively resolve sensitive personnel and career issues for those civilians, soldiers and officers under his direct command.

Since leaving the British Army, Nigel has worked for Network Rail including two years as the Network Rail Project Director on the Crossrail programme for surface engineering enhancements in support of Crossrail Ltd, a team of 100+ project managers, engineers, and support staff. In 2018 he moved to Sydney, Australia with Network Rail Consulting as a Project Director to establish a programme team of fifty personnel to deliver a new signalling system on the Sydney Trains network.

He is based in the UK and undertakes consultancy work as an employment expert witness for HJS Personnel and remote advice on a rail project in Maryland USA for Network Rail Consulting.

Henry Hailstone

BA (Hons) Geography

Advanced Command and Staff Course

MBA

Affiliate Member of the Chartered Institute of Personnel and Development

Henry is an experienced employment and earnings expert witness, who has successfully addressed many complex issues and produced detailed reports supporting Defendant and Claimant personal injury cases for Royal Navy, Royal Marines, Army, RAF and civilian personnel. He has a detailed and in-depth understanding of civilian and military career structures, a strong grasp of the military resettlement employment processes, coupled with wide-ranging knowledge of civilian employment opportunities. He has recently successfully completed the Cardiff University Bond Solon Civil Expert Certificate.

Henry graduated from Queen Mary College, University of London with a Geography degree in 1984 and joined the Royal Navy later that year. After training to be a Lynx Helicopter Observer, he spent the next 10 years flying in various parts of the world, seeing service during the 1st Gulf War and in the Adriatic Sea during the Bosnian Conflict. Graduating from the Army Staff Course in 1996, he spent 18 months in the MoD before going back to sea as the Second-in-Command of the Frigate HMS RICHMOND. The latter half of his Naval career was spent in military procurement, both in the MoD London and the Fleet HQ in Portsmouth.

During his military career he had direct responsibility for the careers of a plethora of military personnel from all three services. He has served on a number of panels, and been directly responsible for the selection and training of naval aircrew, junior officers and naval ratings. Whilst working in the MOD, he was responsible for producing a number of critical and time sensitive reports on the procurement of key equipment for the Armed forces.

After 21 years, Henry left the Navy and embarked on a commercial career firstly with QinetiQ Plc and latterly with SCS Ltd. In a varied existence, he worked initially as a systems engineering consultant and project manager, before settling down into the business development field working across the UK and internationally.

Suzanne Hale

BA (Hons) 1st Class, Business Studies

Suzanne served as an officer of the Royal Air Force, leaving in October 2015 after 19 years' service. Commissioned into the Logistics Branch Suzanne saw service globally in support of training activities and operations, notably within the USA and Canada, the Baltic region, Macedonia and the Middle East. During this time, she was responsible for the career management, welfare, personal development and discipline of up to 200 personnel at any one time. Suzanne then joined a tri-service International Planning Team within the Ministry of Defence, and was made responsible for the continuing development of logistics liaison with Georgian, Romanian, Czech and Polish Air Force counterparts, as well as broader liaison duties within the African Union and European Union HQs.

She was then selected for a tour at Air Command where she was appointed as a Career Manager to the Logistics and Personnel Branch Officer cadre, numbering 366 Flying Officers and Flight Lieutenants. This experience has given Suzanne an in-depth understanding of the process for the selection of personnel for promotion boards, career profiling and the identification and allocation of personnel to specific specialist roles and training courses. She also has significant experience in conducting formal interviews and giving appraisal debriefs across a number of disciplines.

Her final tour of duty was as an Air Force representative to NATO's Allied Rapid Reaction Corps in Gloucestershire where she became part of a multi-national, multi-skilled team responsible for planning major exercises and operational contingency. Suzanne continues to work alongside NATO and the British Armed Forces as a freelance advisor in the design and execution of broad range of complex global training events. Alongside this and her work with HJS she is also a Governance and Executive Administrator, carrying out a diverse range of business management, administration and communication activities in a part-time role with a local housing association.

David Harrison OBE BA (Hons) MBA, Lieutenant Colonel (Retired)

David served for more than 30 years in the British Army as an Infantry Officer in the Devonshire and Dorset Regiment. During his career he held command appointments at every rank up to and including Lieutenant Colonel. Whilst serving as Adjutant, Company Commander, Second in Command and Commanding Officer, he played a key role in the management of the careers of Warrant Officers, senior and junior non-commissioned officers. His staff appointments included three tours in HR policy, career management, postings and promotions. He career managed 1,000 Infantry officers whilst working in the Military Secretary's Department at MOD Stanmore. He was responsible for the liabilities of 800 officer appointments and devised, communicated and implemented the career management aspects of the Army wide Review of Officer Career Courses whilst at APC Glasgow. He established a new Territorial Army Infantry Battalion in the South West of England with bases in 6 counties and managed the careers of 600 regular and reservist personnel, which included participation in APC Glasgow Warrant Officer and Senior Non-commissioned Officer promotion boards. Following the completion of his service at Regimental Duty, David Harrison completed operational and strategic planning roles in NATO HQs. His final assignment was Defence Attaché in Kazakhstan, where he was responsible for the implementation of MOD policy in three Central Asian countries. He served in over 20 countries and deployed on operations in Northern Ireland, the Balkans and Afghanistan. He attended the Army Staff College and the NATO Defence College.

David completed his military service in 2014 and is now a consultant in the Defence & Security sector. He was contracted by the MOD to project manage the establishment of the Defence Attaché and Loan Service Centre at the Defence Academy, and has designed and delivered courses for defence diplomats deploying worldwide. Dom Hill

Master of Business Administration (MBA)

MA War in the Modern World

Chartered Member of the Institute of Personnel & Development (MCIPD)

Post Graduate Diploma Strategic Management & Leadership

BSc (Hons) Human Geography

Dom served for 25 years in the British Army's Royal Corps of Signals and Adjutant General's Corps (Staff & Personnel Support). His service took him from cold war Germany to Canada, Italy, Cyprus and various locations in the United Kingdom, working in units, and Brigade, Corps and NATO Headquarters. He served operational tours of duty in Northern Ireland and Afghanistan and in support of NATO operations in the Former Republic of Yugoslavia. In the latter part of his career, he had the opportunity to work with many different branches of the Army, including Army Aviation, Combat Service Support, the Royal Armoured Corps and the Infantry.

Dom left the Army in 2013 to take up the newly formed role of civilian Regimental Welfare Officer for the Parachute Regiment, based in their Regimental Headquarters in Colchester and working as part of the recently established Afghanistan Trust charity. His role was to support injured and unwell service leavers as well as veterans of the regiment of any age. An important aspect of this role was to ensure people were as well prepared as they could be for new civilian careers outside the Army. In 2015, Dom was appointed as Director of Employment Services and Deputy CEO of the Royal Navy charity, The White Ensign Association. This required an in-depth understanding of the skills and experience held by officers and ratings across the RN and Royal Marines, in order to help them transition into successful second careers when their service came to an end.

Dom has wider experience across the charitable sector, having worked as part of the team at an Almshouse and in operations with a grant making family foundation. His Army career and subsequent work with military charities has given him a wealth of experience and knowledge of career structures in the Royal Navy, Royal Marines and British Army, as well as excellent knowledge of civilian career paths in all sectors of the UK labour market.

Peter Macfarlane

BA (Hons) Modern History

MA Defence Studies

Joint Services Command and Staff College – advanced course graduate

Peter Macfarlane served in the British Army for 25 years as a Cavalry Officer in the Royal Dragoon Guards and its predecessor regiment, the 5th Royal Inniskilling Dragoon Guards. He served in the United Kingdom and overseas and saw active service in the first Gulf War, Northern Ireland, the Former Yugoslavia and Iraq.

Much of his career was spent in personnel management, including three tours at the Army Personnel Centre. These roles included: managing the appointment process for staff college graduates, managing junior officer staff promotion and staff appointments; and managing brigadiers' careers. In regimental appointments at troop, squadron and second in command level he was responsible for the career management of soldiers. This involved producing appraisal reports, providing career advice and participating in promotion boards. He therefore has extensive knowledge and experience of all aspects of Army career management, including role descriptions, appraisal reports, career structures, the appointment and promotion board process, advising soldiers and officers and engaging with employers.

His final role in the Army was in workforce planning, managing the requirements of the Royal Armoured Corps during a period of restructuring following the 2010 Strategic Defence and Security Review, which resulted in redundancies from 2011-2014. After leaving the Army he worked in an interim consultancy role researching for plc level and public sector bids. Since 2015 he has been a member of the management team of Winchester Cathedral, with a range of responsibilities including board secretary, project and event management and external engagement. He joined HJS Personnel Services in 2021.

Karen Rostron

BA (Hons) Law and Economics
Associate of the Institute of Personnel and Development

Karen has been preparing employment reports since 1991, and joined HJS as an Associate in 1997. She has evaluated the employment and earnings prospects of people who have presented with work-limiting and/or career-altering disabilities, mental and physical, including those who have sustained serious head injuries. She has also prepared reports for employment tribunals and divorce cases and has experience of working on behalf of Claimants, Defendants and as a Single Joint Expert. She has researched a wide range of careers and assessed employment trends, developing a special interest in careers allied to medicine, including doctors, nurses and dentists. She also has an interest in cases involving children.

Karen first became involved in training and personnel management in 1987. In her early career, she was employed in the voluntary sector in London where she was responsible for managing a rehabilitation, retraining and resettlement programme for long-term unemployed adults and young people. This included the provision of training, career guidance, counselling and work-experience placement. Karen has experience of training and personnel management in the finance sector and, in addition to her work with HJS, she has worked as a consultant quality manager for companies in the finance sector. She was engaged to design and implement a quality management system in order to achieve ISO 9001 accreditation and provide a framework for the implementation of a risk strategy prior to the takeover of the group. This included policy development, training needs analysis and procedures for ensuring compliance with FSA regulations.

As a local authority-appointed school governor Karen was, for nine years, responsible for monitoring and assessing the special educational needs (SEN) provision of a large primary school in Derbyshire. Her role on the resources management committee involved monitoring the school budget, pay policy provision and assessment data.

In addition to preparing employment reports for the Court, Karen advises, supports and prepares individuals who are ready to return to work through the HJS Pathway to Work programme. She is also a volunteer support worker at a community centre in her local town where a group of young adults with learning difficulties meet in order to prepare CVs and acquire interview skills before seeking supported employment.

Paul was selected to the role of senior instructor at the newly established tri-service police college responsible for the delivery of phase 2 trade training for soldiers, sailors and airmen/women and young officers just leaving Sandhurst. Following a role of branch staff officer at divisional headquarters he was posted to Sierra Leone where he provided training, development and operational advice to all levels up to and including the general staff. He qualified as a Quartermaster and following a number of postings in this role he was appointed as a company commander.

During his career he has gained a wealth of experience dealing with welfare, administration and career management of personnel at all levels from Section Commander to Company Commander. This included appraisal writing, formal career interviews and identifying professional and personal development opportunities. Paul is experienced in writing various reports and producing evidence for the Court. He is a trained interviewer, is familiar with legal processes and has provided evidence at military and civilian Courts.
